School Director Selected as Content Expert for National Licensing Exam

The Federation of State Massage Therapy Boards (FSMTB) has selected Durango massage school director Rebecca Mauldin as a Content Expert for their national licensing exam, the Massage & Bodywork Licensing Examination (MBLEx). The MBLEx is the exam taken by massage therapists seeking licensure by state massage therapy boards. In addition to providing content for the licensing exam, Mauldin has been invited to participate in the exam editing committee.

“As a massage therapist and massage educator, I’m really concerned with the quality of massage therapy being provided. I’m excited and honored to bring my experience as a massage teacher to help write the licensing exam,” says Mauldin. Mauldin founded Rocky Mountain Institute of Healing Arts, a Durango massage and energy healing school, in 2001. She adds, “I’m sure the opportunity to serve the massage profession on a national level will enhance the education we’re providing at RMIHA and I’m excited about that.” In addition to working as the director of the institute, she teaches Neuromuscular Therapy, Structural Kinesiology, Business and Ethics, and Deep Tissue Massage.
